THERE has been no rest for the Queen's favourite chef Anton Mosimann, the chap charged with feeding the 750 Jubilee feast guests at Westminster Hall last Monday.

The Swiss restaurateur, who celebrates 50 years at the hot plate this year, is now in training for the Olympics preparing menus for the Swiss team.

"It looks like he is going to be upstaged though," warns my man wielding the wooden spoon.

"Assisting him in the kitchen is Miss Switzerland 2008 who has reinvented herself as a commis chef and been attracting a lot of attention."

Never mind. All the twinkly maestro is thinking about is revving up his vintage Mercedes and roaring off to Rio for a holiday with his wife Kathrin in September.
